Classroom Instruction Mode

The university offers classroom instruction in a variety of modes. The course delivery mode is assigned to each class and can be viewed on the schedule when the student is enrolling for classes. NDSU instruction modes include:

- On Campus Face to Face (traditional classroom) - The instructor and students are physically located in the same place and may incorporate the use of multiple supportive technologies as appropriate.
- Hybrid/Blended Combination - Instruction that is a blend of traditional classroom instruction with online distance education. All students meet on campus for lectures or presentations on specific days and complete the rest of their coursework via a learning management system. Instructors decide how students participate.
- Independent Study - Instruction is provided in a self-study, self-paced format where the instructor and student mutually established methods of communication.
- Off Campus Face to Face - The instructor and student are physically located in the same place in an off campus location and may incorporate the use of multiple supportive technologies as appropriate.
- Online Asynchronous - Online instruction occurring independent of time or location.
- Online Synchronous - Online instruction occurring independent of location, but at the same time (real time).
