

Preliminary Examination and Final Defense

10.2. Final Defense

The final defense is an oral examination given to the supervisory committee in which the author of the master's paper, thesis, or culminating work or doctoral dissertation demonstrates satisfactory command of both the focus area of their project and the broader field.

- A student may not attempt the final defense in the same semester in which they complete the preliminary examination.